ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Commission would like to acknowledge the gracious assistance of the many individuals in New Jersey municipal government who provided knowledge and data for this publication. Over thirty-five interviews have been conducted with mayors, council members, managers, administrators and clerks, all who have been valuable in providing their experience in the various forms of municipal government.

There have been many individuals, in particular, who have given freely of their time and advice:

John E. Trafford, executive director of the New Jersey State League of Municipalities, Robert F. Casey, business administrator of the Borough of Freehold, and Benjamin R. Fitzgerald, city clerk of Atlantic City, all members of the State Commission on County and Municipal Government, who provided invaluable information toward this project.

Others, who have been most helpful, are: Albert J. Wolfe, bureau chief of municipal information, New Jersey State League of Municipalities; Ernest C. Reock, director of the Bureau of Government Research, Rutgers, the State University of New Jersey; William H. Struwe, Division of Local Government Services, New Jersey State Department of Community Affairs; Robert E. Lupp, supervising librarian of New Jersey State Government Publications, New Jersey State Library; and Frank Haines Jr.

A special note of thanks is due to Arlene K. Wilkinson for her typing of the first drafts of this report and her diligent work on all other related tasks that go into the preparation of a Commission report.

In conclusion, much gratitude is extended to all the members of the State Commission on County and Municipal Government for making this project possible and for their support in the publication of its results.
